Parkman: Murder on Beacon Hill A Walking Cinema

A GPS based film for iPhones and ipods in Historic Boston with the CDF student population. This tour is free and would be a fun off the beaten path activity for students who are new to Boston, as well as those who know its streets well. The mapped video and audio leads you to an old jail turned hotel where you can play an antique morality board game, allows you to enter and breathe deeply in the dome where ether was invented, and takes you into local businesses where you browse a popup book titled "Evil Architecture" and uncover other exciting artifacts. "Walking Cinema: Murder on Beacon Hill" is an audio and video tour detailing the notorious 19th-century slaying of a wealthy Bostonian, George Parkman. Real-life relics, a skull here, a weapon there, will be placed in stores and other buildings on Beacon Hill, serving as waypoints for the tour." -Boston Globe. Visit www.parkmanmurder.com for more information.
